

Caption: Multi-colored butterflies around two open hands. Each arm wears colored wristbands listing disabilities and conditions. The wristbands on the left arm read: "multiple sclerosis", "muscular dystrophy", "down syndrome", "developmental delay", "chronic pain", "mental illness", "heart defect", "graves disease", "Sturge-Weber". The wristbands on the right arm read: "Tourettes", "Cystic fibrosis", "epilepsy", "spinal bifida", "dystonia", "ptsd", "cerebral palsy", "lupus", "hearing impairment"

Wristbands/Butterflies

ARTIST: Renee Granger Smith

The butterflies represent different disabilities. What I hope to convey is that they are all just so beautiful all together in their differences. The butterflies fly in a heart shaped pattern. They are not forced into this pattern. They are united together in a love greater than themselves.
